Re: VPUE Proposal for Teaching Credit for Faculty-led Internship Courses

The Committee on Educational Policy reviewed the proposal for teaching credit for faculty-led internship courses at UCR. The Committee recommends that the issue of granting teaching credit to faculty who instruct internship courses should be decided at the College level. The Committee commented that the College would be the best source to determine if a faculty member's workload is appropriate to count for academic credit and that it would be difficult for the decision to be regulated at the campus level without knowing the specifics of the internship course and/or program.
