e) Four additional 4-unit, upper-division Psychology courses. Only EDUC 106/HMDV 106/PSYC 106 or one 4-5 unit quarter of PSYC 198G or one 4- to 8-unit quarter of PSYC 198I may be included. No 190-series courses other than PSYC 198G or PSYC 198I may be used. Students planning for graduate school should take into consideration any specific graduate school requirements when choosing these elective Psychology courses.

JUSTIFICATION

EDUC/HMDV/PSYC 106, Practicum in Child Development, was changed (to become effective 2003 Fall) so that repeating the course is no longer an option. Thus it is no longer necessary to designate that “only one quarter” is permitted. Psychology 198I, Individual Internship in Psychology, is a new course to be effective 2003 Fall. It is considered as appropriate to include as a permitted elective as PSYC 106 and PSYC 198G (Group Internship in Psychology). However, although there are strong academic components to all three courses, there is also a heavy practical emphasis, and so upon consideration, faculty wish to permit the use of only one of these three courses in completing major requirements.
