   173
9. Production Management: BUS
   104/STAT 104, and two from BUS
   105, BUS 122, BUS 127/STAT 127

Note: In filling the dual requirements of the selected major, students may not count more than two courses toward both parts of their total requirements (Sociology requirements and Administrative Studies requirements).

JUSTIFICATION:

1. We seek to reduce the number of our undergraduate specializations from 7 to 5 in light of actual and impending losses in our ladder-ranked faculty which constrain our ability to offer and develop new courses within the urban and the organizations specializations. The proposed specializations better reflect the expertise and current teaching interests of our current faculty given recent and impending faculty turnover.

2. We seek to expand the course options for students to fulfill their specialization requirements in order to facilitate students' timely completion of their degree requirements. These changes are also intended to update the specialization requirements so that they better reflect changes within the broader discipline of sociology as well as current course offerings in each of these subfields. The proposed changes also better reflect the expertise and teaching interests of current faculty (particularly faculty hired in the past 15 years), which should facilitate course scheduling. The current specialization requirements are outdated, hindering faculty’s ability to teach courses that reflect changes in the discipline and the current faculty’s teach interests and expertise.

3. We are proposing to change the grade requirements for our lower-division courses (Soc 1, Soc 4, Soc 5, and two additional lower-division courses) from a C to a C- in order to be consistent with systemwide regulations regarding grade requirements for courses which are currently being enforced by the Committee on Courses at UC-Riverside. As a result of this requirement, Sociology students are able to enroll in Soc 3 if they have taken Soc 1 with a C- or better, they can enroll in Soc 4 if they have taken Soc 1 with a C- or better, and they can enroll in Soc 5 if they have taken Soc 4 with a C- or better. Students are also able to enroll in various upper-division Sociology courses if they received a C- or better in Soc 1, 3, 4, and/or 5. In light of this, we want the grade requirements for the lower-division courses to be consistent with the C- and above standard so that students who do receive a C- in their lower division courses are not excluded from the major (or have to repeat these lower-division courses). Per email conversations between past CEP Chair Ward Beyermann and the Sociology department, lowering the C requirement to a C- would solve the curriculum problem which could exclude students who pass lower division courses by receiving a C- but do not qualify for the major with the existing C grade requirements. Moreover, following CEP Ward Beyerman's advice given to the Department in 2013, we plan to encourage Sociology instructors who teach Sociology to raise the academic standards so that C- are comparable to what we used to consider C grades.
