JUSTIFICATION:

With the addition of many new faculty in recent years and the broadening of our curriculum, it is appropriate to expand the number of areas of concentration from which students can choose for their major or minor. We have added Science And Technology to the list of options for our minor since we believe that a significant number of science students will consider this a desirable option for a minor, thus fostering intercollegiate studies.

We have abandoned lists of course numbers in our descriptions of the major and minor so as to avoid having to rework catalog descriptions of the major and minor whenever courses are added or deleted. A list of courses currently on offer in each area of concentration will, of course, be available in the history department office.

The major and minor are still intended to encourage breadth and depth in a student’s knowledge. Our overarching purpose is to ensure that balance. We are pleased that the recent addition of faculty and courses enables us to expand the number of fields available to students as they fulfill both breadth and depth requirements.
