The Department of Comparative Literature has established WRLT 15 as a new course which will be added as a requirement to all of the majors offered by the Department. The course bridges all three areas of Departmental expertise and interest, and will unify both our students and our curricula by having this course in common. The courses will introduce to majors mainly concerned with any one of the three areas (language, literature, and culture) some ways in which the three are intrinsically connected.
