Note: Observance begins on sundown the preceding day. Although Muslim Holy Days are on the same day of the Islamic calendar, the date on the Gregorian calendar varies from year to year, since the Gregorian calendar is a solar calendar and the Islamic calendar is a lunar calendar. This difference means Muslim Holy Days move in the Gregorian calendar approximately 11 days every year. The date of a Muslim Holy Day may also vary from country to country depending on whether the moon has been sighted or not. The dates provided here are based on Timeanddate.com (Saudi Arabia). Note that these dates are based on astronomical calculations to affirm each date, and not on the actual sighting of the moon with the naked eye.

Re: Common Academic Calendars

Dear Colleagues:

As you know, COC endorsed the Academic Senate request to align the academic calendars of the quarter-based and semester-based campuses. As a first step towards that alignment, COC agreed with the Senate that efforts should be undertaken to establish common start dates for each of the academic terms ensuring that the quarter campuses are consistent with one another and likewise the semester campuses.

To implement this plan, I am requesting that you ask your campus Registrar to discuss this issue with the UC Systemwide Council of Registrars and that the Council should develop a recommendation for a calendar for the quarter and semester campuses with common start dates. The recommendation should include a plan for implementation within a reasonable time frame understanding that campus calendars are already in place for at least the next several years. I would like the Council of Registrars to submit this recommendation to me by April 1, 2005.

I would appreciate your forwarding this communication to whomever is most directly involved with the establishment of your campus’ academic calendar.

Thank you.

RE: Common Academic Calendar Start Dates

Dear Colleagues:

In January 2005 the Council of Chancellors endorsed an Academic Senate request to align the academic calendars of quarter-based and semester-based campuses. In implementing this effort toward alignment, the UC Council of Registrars was charged with developing a recommendation to establish common start dates for each of the academic terms, so that the start dates of quarter campuses would be consistent with one another and likewise the semester campuses through 2010-11.

It is now time for the University to begin planning for the 2011-12 to 2015-16 academic years. It is my understanding that the Council of Registrars is currently working toward developing this future calendar, with common start dates for the quarter campuses and common start dates for the semester campuses. This is an important effort, especially given that subsequent UC policies, such as the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days (June 21, 2007), have been predicated upon the establishment of common start dates for the campus academic calendars.

Thus, I am continuing the policy of having common start dates for the quarter and semester campuses for the next five years. I look forward to receiving the Council of Registrars recommendation and each of your campus’ proposed 2011-12 to 2015-16 academic calendars by August 1, 2008, for review and approval.

Sincerely,

Wyatt R. Hume

Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall "Move-In" Days

I. POLICY SUMMARY

The Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days, establishes the University’s policy for setting the common academic calendar after 2010 to avoid scheduling fall residence hall move-in days for students that conflict with the observance of a major religious holiday. The policy also describes guidelines for the campuses in those exceptional cases where the University adopts a calendar that would create a conflict between observance of a major religious holiday and residence hall move-in dates for new students.

II. DEFINITIONS

Not applicable
III. POLICY TEXT

1. This policy is adopted by the University as a result of conflicts that have arisen over the years, including in the fall of 2006, between fall residence hall move-in days and the Jewish High Holy Days of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

2. In setting the common academic calendar after 2010, the responsible University bodies -- the Registrars, the Academic Senate (both campus Divisions and the Academic Council), Office of the President staff, and campus calendar committees -- shall choose calendars (semester and quarter) that avoid scheduling fall residence hall move-in days for students that conflict with the observance of a major religious holiday. Exceptions are to be made only if there are overriding academic or administrative considerations that would make such a calendar unworkable. The University will develop written guidelines to delineate such considerations. For example, these might include the need to complete the required minimum number of instructional days and the need to finish summer quarter before the move-in dates.

   The University shall provide written reports on its progress in developing the written guidelines to the Senate Education Committee and the Assembly Higher Education Committee on September 1, 2007 and March 1, 2008. The University shall complete development of the written guidelines no later than June 1, 2008, and shall provide the written guidelines to the Senate Education Committee and to the Assembly Higher Education Committee upon completion of the guidelines.

3. In those exceptional cases where the University adopts a calendar that would create a conflict between observance of a major religious holiday and residence hall move-in dates for new students, the campuses shall abide by the following guidelines:

   a. At some campuses, residence hall move-in of all students is accomplished on a single day of a weekend. Those campuses shall choose the weekend day that does not conflict with either observance of a one-day religious holiday or the first day of a multi-day religious holiday.

   b. For campuses that have multiple move-in days including both days of the weekend, students who observe the holidays shall be given the opportunity to move in on the day that does not conflict with either a one-day religious holiday or the first day of a multi-day religious holiday. In addition, those students shall be given the opportunity to move in with a substantial portion (1/4 or more) of the other members of their housing unit and shall be provided with an equivalent set of community-wide social and orientation activities. For example, a campus that otherwise moves students in over two days by opening different residence halls might instead move in half the students in each residence hall over the two days. Or, for example, a large campus might move in all of its students over a number of days, but not schedule community-wide social and orientation activities until all students are given the opportunity to occupy their University housing.
c. All campuses will also offer alternative move-in days for students who for religious reasons do not want to move in on either Saturday or Sunday or for whom the arrangements described above do not enable them to comply with their religious obligations. At least one of the alternative days shall be before the beginning of the weekend (i.e., “early move-in”).

4. All materials/literature addressing student move-in procedures should be updated to clearly communicate that should move-in dates conflict with observances of religious holidays, accommodations will be made for affected students. The process for those affected should be described and/or a specific point of contact provided.

5. A student should not be penalized financially for not moving into University facilities on "move-in day" should the day/time conflict with observance of a religious holiday by that student.

6. The University shall immediately implement the policies set forth in Sections 3, 4, and 5 herein.

IV. COMPLIANCE / RESPONSIBILITIES
Chancellors are responsible for implementation and enforcement of the Policy.

Guidelines on Exceptions to the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days

Dear Colleagues:

Enclosed are the Guidelines on Exceptions to the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days. These guidelines direct how the University will consider requests for exceptions to the policy that academic calendar dates after 2010 avoid fall residence hall move-in day conflicts with major religious holiday observances (Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days). Exceptions to the policy are to be made only if there are overriding academic or administrative considerations that would make such a calendar unworkable. The enclosed guidelines dictate what those considerations may be.

The guidelines were developed by a special task force chaired by Vice Provost for Educational Relations Joyce Justus and which included representatives from various University bodies responsible for developing campus calendars and implementing the religious holiday move-in policy, such as the Academic Council, Council of Registrars, Housing and Residential Life Directors, Office of General Counsel, and Student Affairs. In developing the guidelines, the task force also consulted with several campus interfaith groups with representation from a broad spectrum of religions.

The guidelines recognize that there may be rare instances in which there are significant overriding academic or administrative considerations that preclude the establishment of an academic calendar that would not create a conflict between observance of a major religious holiday and fall residence hall move-in dates. Under the guidelines, and in accordance with existing University policy on campus calendar approval (SOR 100.4(h), DA 0556), the President or designee has responsibility for evaluating whether a request for an exception to the policy meets one of the enumerated criteria.

My hope and expectation is that the University, in setting future academic calendars, will be able to successfully avoid the need for any exceptions to the policy. The guidelines do not signal a policy encouraging such requests, but rather establish criteria for review in the event that there are rare cases where significant overriding academic or administrative considerations would make an academic calendar, which does not present a conflict between fall residence hall move-in and observance of a major religious holiday, unworkable.
The Guidelines on Exceptions to the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days are effective immediately.

Sincerely,

Wyatt R. Hume

Guidelines on Exceptions to the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days

I. The University of California seeks to avoid scheduling fall residence hall move-in days that conflict with the observance of a major religious holiday (Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days).

II. In rare instances, the President or designee may approve an exception to the University’s policy of choosing common academic calendar start dates (quarter and semester) after 2010 that avoid scheduling fall residence hall move-in days for students that conflict with the observance of a major religious holiday. Exceptions will be limited and may be approved only when it has been determined that overriding academic or administrative considerations would make a calendar that would not create a conflict between observance of a major religious holiday and residence hall move-in dates unworkable. Such academic and administrative considerations may include:

1. The need to comply with policies that require a minimum number of instructional days within an academic year, term, or other time period (UC Guidelines for Establishing the Academic and Administrative Calendar, federal regulations).

2. The need to finish summer quarter before the fall residence hall move-in dates.

3. The need to adopt a calendar that observes official University holidays (UC personnel policies and collective bargaining agreements, UC Guidelines for Establishing the Academic and Administrative Calendar).

4. The need to accommodate scheduling changes due to natural disaster or other catastrophic event.

5. The need to accommodate a special event that has a compelling state or national interest and that impacts the use of campus facilities (e.g., 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles).

III. In those exceptional cases where the University adopts a calendar that would create a conflict between observance of a major religious holiday and residence hall move-in dates, the campuses shall abide by the guidelines for accommodating such conflicts set forth in Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the Policy for Addressing Religious Holiday Conflicts with Residence Hall “Move-In” Days.
