The Riverside Division of the Academic Senate met on Tuesday, February 26, 2019 at 1:21 p.m. in the Genomics Auditorium Room 1102A. Chair D. Rodríguez presided. The meeting was attended by 43 members of the Riverside Division of the Academic Senate.

The Minutes of the Regular Meeting of December 4, 2018 were approved as presented.

There were no announcements by the President.

 Chancellor Kim A. Wilcox addressed the Division.

 Chancellor Wilcox began his remarks by acknowledging the campus evolving culture since the departure of Vice Chancellor Sandoval. He recognized newly hired Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Brian Haynes, for leading a review of the student affairs operations in conjunction with Kiersten Boyce, the campus Chief Compliance Officer. He then asked VC Haynes to give the Division a brief update. VC Haynes recognized the following individuals for playing an active role in helping to move the review process: Professor John Cioffi, Kiersten Boyce and Dean Kathryn Uhrich. An outside consulting firm was hired to facilitate this process. They have come to campus and have interviewed the entire student affairs division including all staff (about 250) and all student employees. An online survey was also sent out to about 750 participants. A number of issues were uncovered during this process and the goal is to pivot into a strategic planning process which will start in the Spring.

 The Human Resources operation will also be reviewed. Kiersten Boyce and Vice Chancellor for Business and Administrative Services, Gerry Bomotti, will be leading this review. This review will include all HR operations across campus. Kiersten Boyce noted that they will not be revisiting investigations that have already been completed in terms of determining what former VC Sandoval did but rather try to get to current structural or cultural issues that might need to be changed to ensure that this does not happen in the future.

 Chancellor Wilcox noted that a group has been assembled to talk about the campus culture issues. He also noted that, Tarana Burke, MeToo Founder, will soon be visiting campus.

 There were no announcements by the Vice Chancellors.

 There were no announcements by the Deans.

UNIVERSITY AND FACULTY WELFARE
A. Dr. Ann Cheney, Assistant Professor, Department of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health, Center for Healthy Communities, School of Medicine and Julie Chobdee, MPH, Wellness Program Coordinator, UCR Human Resources gave a presentation on the UCR Healthy Campus opportunities for faculty. The UCR Healthy Campus vision is to be the model healthy campus, inspiring and infusing health and well-being into all of its facets. The mission is to create a healthy campus culture and environment through collaboration with campus partners on policies, programs, services and initiatives that address all dimensions of wellness, along with innovative engagement strategies, making UCR a university of choice.

Healthy Campus Pedagogy Best Practices:

3) Encourage breaks, standing, stretching and reflection.
4) Share resources and wellness information with students.
5) Help students connect with you (make yourself available in different forms: email, skype, etc.).
6) Be welcoming, enthusiastic and caring.
7) Provide timely feedback and helpful advice.
8) Provide opportunities that promote professional and personal skills.
9) Help students connect with each other.

B. Underground Scholars Initiative (USI) at UC Riverside discussion. Chair Rodríguez introduced the founding members of USI to the Division. USI is its first year as an organization on campus. The USI at UCR creates a pathway for formerly incarcerated and system-impacted individuals into higher education. The goal of USI is to bridge the popular academic theoretical discourse of mass incarceration with one that is grounded in the real lived experiences of UCR students and the surrounding community. One of the main focus points is to gain more students on campus which includes potential students and to focus on retaining these student’s, so they graduate from UCR. USI has been working with the Grad Division on creating a survey where students can identify as formerly incarcerated or system-impacted. USI is in its second quarter on campus and have already identified ten formerly incarcerated and system-impacted students. The goal is to create a safe space on campus where these students can gather and use resources the campus has to offer.

Awareness and advocacy are also very important. The founders of UCR USI presented at a leadership conference on the school-to-prison pipeline and they were able to share their experiences with others. Community outreach and collaborations are also important when bridging the gap between education and society. USI members have gone to middle schools to speak to students, have met with the black student union to share collaborations and discuss how to make change together, they were given the opportunity to meet Cornell West at UCI and had an art class with UCLA’s USI on social justice through art activism.

USI exists on several UC campuses as well as several college/university campuses. The UC network exists at UC Berkeley, UCLA and UC Irvine. Berkeley’s recruitment process includes an ambassador program, transfer partnership and correspondence. They retain students by tutoring, research and other resources and they create opportunities on their campus for formerly incarcerated and system-impacted students. The “Ban the Box” went into effect on May 1, 2016 allowing students to not have to check the box (convicted felon) when completing their application for transfer admission. UC Berkeley also has and Underground Scholars center with a Director and staff.

The Cal State University network known as Project Rebound, is also very informative and useful. CSU offers special admissions for formerly incarcerated and system-impacted individuals that may not normally qualify, have an academic program advising, offer food vouchers, BART tickets and money for books, offer internships and research opportunities along with educational workshops in local jails and offer advocacy for students with parole or probation difficulties.

Future Goals for Education not Incarceration. Create a resource center on campus for formerly incarcerated/system-impacted students, scholarship opportunities, create a prison to school pipeline for those currently incarcerated, collaborate with community organizations in the Inland Empire for formerly incarcerated individuals, create a safe environment at UCR, advocate for all UCR student service departments to support this student population and gain faculty support.

For those who have questions or wish to offer their support, the Underground Scholars can be reached by email at undergoundscholarsucr@gmail.com.
